

Oil Well Dream

In my dream I saw an oil field, like in Texas, with lots of oil rigs in the foreground. Some of these wells were spurting oil and others weren't.

This seemed strange to me as wells only spout oil while they are being drilled, not when that are in production.

The dream then switched to a geological transection of the oil field. It showed the wells with their shafts going deep down into the crude oil reservoir inside the crust.

As I looked at the level of the oil and the depth of the oil shafts I noticed that some of the shafts were no longer reaching the oil as the level had dropped due to the extraction process over time. I then realised that the wells that were spurting oil were the ones which had a shaft still in the oil reserve. The ones that were 'dry' were no longer reaching the oil.

I knew in my spirit that this dream was a spiritual message, so I queried in my spirit and understood that it was about going deep in intimacy with the Lord.

This is the injunction I received at the conclusion of the event: If you have, or think you have, a deep intimate relationship with Jesus, go deeper so you don't dry out.
