

Restoration in the 7 Mountains

The following is a transcript of the end of a teaching session by Bruno Zimmereli at Company of Burning Hearts on 12-11-2018.<sup>1</sup> Occasional vagaries of speech have been removed to preserve the message.

“I just watched a video clip of Loren Begel being at the Ellen show. It is so amazing what God is doing. He’s putting these Christians writing songs now that really touch the heart of everybody. Not just some church people. You know, we need this more and more and more and more. Songs that are really transporting the anointing, transporting the glory of God. A message of hope. The message of the gospel. The message of the love of God into the hearts of people. We need Christians to be in the TV, but, please, stop preaching at the TV. Please don’t preach at in the TV. There’s enough teaching and preaching going on.

You know what we need? We need Christians that produce movies that are so catchy that they capture the heart of the people with a message of hope and of the gospel in a way that it’s really, really changing the world. You know, because the entertainment industry...Who’s heard of the concept of the 7 mountains before? Because these 7 mountains are mind molders. They determine the thinking of the people. We’ve just left everything to the devil. We left media to the devil, we left the entertainment industry to the devil, because the TV is bad of course, you shouldn’t watch too much TV. We left everything. We left the education system to the devil. Because we’re not going to be here for long. We’re going to be out of here any time, anyway. So why bother with these things. We left the business world to the devil. We left everything, all these 7 mountains. We just left it to the devil and now we wonder why people are not open to the gospel any more.

I tell you, because over decades, the enemy was teaching the people what we should have been doing. And it’s time for Christians, for sons of God and daughters of God, to rise up and take these mountains. Not with the same methods of this world. Don’t get me wrong. It’s good also for Christians to go into politics, but we will have a different approach. We’ll not use the tools of this world. We will use what is inside of us. We will use what we see in heaven when we go up there. We will use what we perceive from the Holy Spirit and we will bring the Kingdom into every area of society.

When I teach this to the young people, they get excited because they get a vision for their life. You know what my parents said to me when I was a child? ... You have to learn a profession that you can use on the mission field. So, maybe the girls can become a nurse and maybe the boys can become a craftsman, like a carpenter, or something like that. Because that you can use in the mission field. And although they said that from all their heart, it was their perspective. No. We need people to go to university to get the best degrees they can, to become the smartest guys on the planet. To bring solutions to this world. We need people to rise up and it’s not prideful if you have a doctor’s degree. It’s not prideful. If it’s your calling, it’s what you should do. And don’t let your destiny be defined and blocked by a certain way of thinking that appears to be so humble and spiritual, but in fact it’s not.

The Kingdom is here. Daniel, besides the 70 weeks, he had another dream, another vision. You know this statue with the golden head, the silver chest, the bronze hips and the iron [legs]. And it was 4 kingdoms, 4 ancient kingdoms. It was the Babylonian kingdom, it was the Persian kingdom, it was the Greek kingdom, and finally was the Roman’s kingdom. And then it said, “In that time, of that kingdom...” I’m sorry guys but that was 2,000 years ago. It’s not today. Futuristic eschatologists always try to figure out some way of a resurrected Roman empire in our days. It’s not going to happen. I’m sorry to disappoint you, to delusion you. But he said, “In the days of that kingdom, a stone not made from human hands will roll down and crush the statue at their feet, and it will crush and crumble and there will more be a kingdom that is ruling the earth. Only, this little stone turns and grows into a mountain that fills the whole Earth. That’s the Kingdom of Jesus Christ. That’s what he said when he said, “The Kingdom is at hand”. That Kingdom is filling the Earth right now. You’d better get up and join the party. You’d better get up and join the company of sons and daughters of God who bring restoration to this creation.

I don't want to belittle this wonderful experience of conversion and becoming a new creation, and becoming a believer in Jesus Christ. But if that's the only thing the cross accomplished, it's very, very little. Because it means, in the end, God will throw this creation into the garbage can and he has to recreate it and make a new one. But what about restoring this one. What about restoring this one. I tell you, I studied it – it's legal to think that way. It's not a theological impossibility, because all these words of new creation mean a renewed (especially when talking about the new Heaven and the new Earth), it's about a renewing.

Do we believe that the cross, and what Jesus did, has so much power to restore everything? Wasn't that what Peter was preaching? It says, "Heaven must take him until the restoration of all things". There's a restoration going on. There's a Kingdom growing right now, I tell you, and it's the Kingdom of God. Daniel predicted that there'd never be a kingdom any more besides that kingdom ruling the world – even the kingdom of the Anti-Christ."
