

Subliminal Programming Against Husbands

We are continually indoctrinated by the Left's ideologies in ways that are often oblivious to us. This is the subliminal programming which comes through news, books, TV and movies. Of course, there is always overt propaganda in the news media, school lessons, university lectures, textbooks, magazines, movies, etc., but it's the covert messages that we often miss to our detriment.

Just look at how the 'try before you buy' message of the 1960s is now an acceptable part of society and present in just about any movie from PG upwards. Even in the church there is tolerance and acceptable of adultery among Christians – that is unless you question them about it.

These days evolution, climate change, aberrant sexuality, over-spending, possession-collecting, pleasure-seeking and sport fanaticism are all built into the media we view, often at a level that we don't find offensive. These form the covert programming which slowly wears down our defences until we are suddenly supportive of one or all of them without even realizing it.

I recently watched the 2017 movie "Finding Your Feet" which had covert programming built into a feel-good story about a married woman finding her place in life.

The subliminal programming only became obvious to me when I began analysing the movie after watching it. What did I find? The wife was only fulfilled (i.e. she 'found her feet') when she left her husband and took up with another man.

This separation was couched under the pretence that the husband was controlling and restricted her from being herself. What did he do? He wasn't abusive, nor did he beat her. He asked her to act like her status demanded as Lady Abbott while living among the British aristocracy. In other words, she couldn't be appropriately corrected by her husband when she was out-of-line.

Also displayed as acceptable was the "bohemian" lifestyle of her sister which included adultery. She was free of a husband and could be as promiscuous as she liked, all for the purpose of making her life 'full'.

A feel-good movie? Yes, but it only for women. It makes them feel good about leaving their marriage and responsibilities for selfish reasons.

That's subliminal programming!
