A WORD FOR THE FORERUNNERS GROUP:

I know your heart:

You have gone through many battles in life. Many times you wanted to give up on your faith and go back to your past life because of the intensity of the battles. You said many times, "This is too hard for me," but after thinking over your options, you said, "Where can I go Lord? You are all that I have. I won't go back. I'll stay with You. Please help me through this."

Overcome:

Did you know that you came out victorious after each battle even though you didn't think so because your circumstances did not change and you seemed to lose more and more ground to the enemies? Did you know that after each battle, you went from strength to strength because you triumphed over the enemies of fear, intimidation and discouragement? You have learnt to overcome. I call you an overcomer.

Your strength:

There were times in the fierceness of the battles, I saw that you could not trust your own ability to withstand the force of the enemies and you also doubted My will for you. But I want to tell you that you have touched my heart tremendously when I saw you, despite all that happened around you, you chose to continue to trust and abide in My love and push against all odds to remain in My love. In Me, you have fought bravely and valiantly.

My beloved, I know your weaknesses, and I know your strengths. The way I see weaknesses and strengths is not the way the world sees them. Because you have learnt to draw closer in these difficult times, your faith has been built up. Your strength is in you abiding in Me, in your relationship with Me. As you get more and more intimate with me, you will discover more and more who I am and who you are.

My beloved, I am your strength. I have brought you out of many deep waters, so help others who are on their journey of faith. Greater level of faith comes as a result of being tested in battles and this is the lesson that I want my children to experience firsthand. So tell them what you already know about Me. Teach them about intimacy with Me.

Stay focussed: And now, I have a word for you. Don't get complacent. I want you to know that battles are a part of your journey and there are more to come. Nothing happens by coincident and everything has a divine purpose. Trust Me and stay on course! Remember, I have overcome the world.

New season: For these times of testing have brought you to a place of trust, intimacy and consecration unto Me, I will open the heavens to you for further advancement, greater opportunities and fruitfulness in this new season. New understanding and new strategies will be given to you. In this season, you will also be joined with those who are like-spirited and like-minded. Together you will build each other up and contend together for the breakthrough for my people. When you do that, your own breakthrough will also come.

Do not fear nor doubt. Do not feel intimidated and do not be discouraged by what you see or hear. Be brave and courageous. You'll do a completely new thing in this season and for this season to be fruitful I require from you a new level of trust in Me. Unless it is from Me, do not follow or act upon what you hear or see, In any current situations, do not follow the old ways that you knew nor rely on your past experience.

When I call, you act. And because you act on my behalf, I shall foil, thwart and overturn any tactics of the enemies. Nothing can stand against My will for My people, but I need you to co-operate with Me.

I have called you to build and to war, and to speak forth My words. When you do what the Spirit reveals to you, things shall be done according to the words that you speak. What you believe will come to pass, so believe in Me.

Intimacy: Remember, the most important thing in this life for you is your intimacy with Me, so don't let anything come between us.
