

Leadership Is Central in Our World

Myles Munroe notes¹ that leadership is critical for society in the following ways:

1. Nothing happens without leadership
2. Nothing succeeds without leadership
3. Nothing is altered or transformed without leadership
4. Nothing develops without leadership
5. Nothing advances without leadership
6. Nothing improves without leadership
7. Nothing is corrected without leadership

He states:

*“Leadership is therefore key to human preservation, growth, and change. No matter what condition a society or nation finds itself in, it didn’t arrive there by accident. Someone led them there. Every person on earth is being guided, influenced, or manipulated by someone. Directly or indirectly, consciously or unconsciously, we are continually being led by those who are our ‘official’ leaders, as well as those who have become our de facto leaders by their influence over us. That is why our current problems won’t be solved without a renewed emphasis on the foundational elements of positive and effective leadership.”*²
