Update from the UN

UN issues stark warning on climate change

The UN Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) has warned that temperatures are set to rise by 1.5 degrees Celsius between 2030 and 2052 if global warming continues at its current pace

CLIMATE IMPACTS

Rise of 1.5°C

Rise of 2°C

Arctic: Sea ice-free summer

Once per century

Once per decade

Sea level rise: Exposure to flooding in 2100

31-69 million people worldwide

32-80 million people worldwide

Extreme heat: Exposure at least once every five years

About 14% of global population

About 37% of global population

Severe drought: Increase in urban population exposed

+350 million people worldwide

+411 million people worldwide

Status of coral reefs

70-90% lost

99% lost

Plants and animals
Species losing more than half of their range

6% of insects,
8% of plants,
4% of vertebrates

18% of insects,
16% of plants,
8% of vertebrates

“Plan A remains tackling the problem at its source. But the UN’s top climate science body has made it clear that slashing carbon pollution won’t be enough to keep Earth from overheating.

That has opened the door to a host of geo-engineering schemes, and an under-the-radar set of global industry guidelines, currently in review, which could help mainstream them.

Here is a menu of “Plan B” geoengineering solutions, and their potential drawbacks...”
