Just maybe - there is more than mediocre proof of "Fake News". The photos below show just how easy it is to manipulate people's perceptions of an event that's being covered for the sake of whatever agenda that the powers-that-be at a given news network might have.

The dangers of a one sided story

An angle makes a world of difference.

Fake photography, goes well with biased news, biased reporters and biased Networks.

This just goes to show how easily things can be staged on TV.

Abby D. Pritz

Big, boisterous crowd here in Omaha for Hillary Clinton and Warren Buffett

@ThePuzzler

@CNNPolitics. Are you reporting on the 50 people who showed up to Hillary rally in Omaha today?

131 172 people are talking about this

Creating the

in numbers for Hillary Clinton!

What media shows us

The actual truth

This soldier looks like he was threatening the boy in the first image. It turns out he wasn't.

Not many people turned out for the launch of UK PM
Theresa May's campaign bus...

This photo was staged between photographers and a young Palestinian.

The kid in this infamous photo was participating in a pro-immigration demonstration.

He wasn't a detained illegal immigrant.

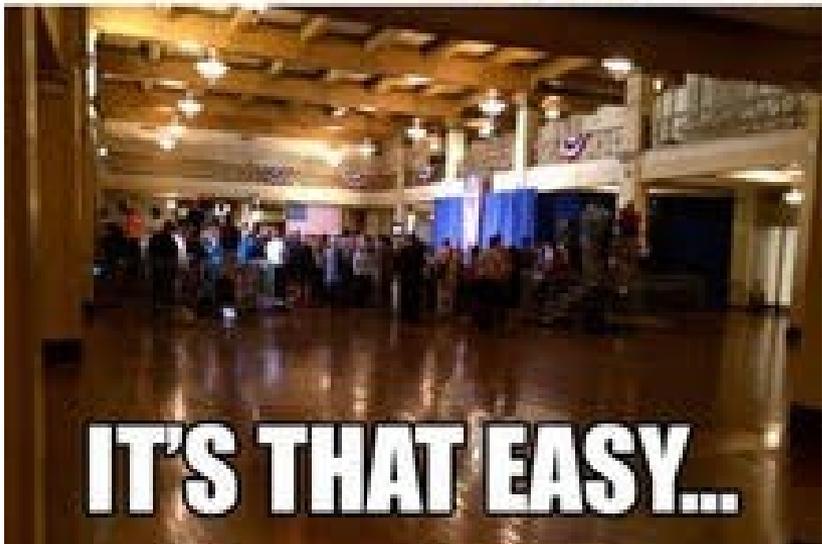

The camera was used to create the illusion of more people.

What a JOKE!

MEDIA DECEPTION

Not quite as many people there as was made out to be...

IT'S THAT EASY...

And they make you believe it because viewers traditionally trust the media.

Today's Big Media are dishonest and corrupt. They are complicit with a specific agenda first and foremost.

It's NOT real News.

Real news is also manipulated by omission.

It's time to wise up, Folks!
