[Report #5]

I've Ceased Addressing The Trinity Using Their Titles

I'm experimenting with this to see what happens with my spirituality as I have ceased to address the members of the Trinity directly in my conversations with them. As I do this, I'm testing the outcomes each day with my spirit. This is a step of faith and it's scary.

I've undertaken numerous other changes where I ceased to do things the way the church taught me as I endeavoured to be free, to enable myself to be changed by my King. These have been successful, spiritually and naturally, so I've moved on to this 'experiment' to see where it takes me.

What am I doing now?

Once I've connected with the Trinity through my spirit I just talk to them, without addressing them, because I know they receive my spiritual communication. Also, it doesn't matter which of them I want to speak to, they all hear me as they are one (in oneness).

What I'm hoping will come out of this is a resolution of a number of religious problems. I'm being deprogrammed from all religious thinking and activity, this being a deeper one to address.

I know there are different ways we are to address the Trinity from a Kingdom perspective<sup>1</sup>, instead of using Christian (biblical) terms. I've been doing this for a while now. I've also decided not to use titles which are religious jargon,<sup>2</sup> such as "Christ", and definitely not using titles for them in the Jewish language.<sup>3</sup>

Again, this is a scary step. I feel (like the other changes I've made), that I'm back where I was walking with God as a Christian young man, having no real or tangible connection with him. Back then, I was doing my own thing, just acknowledging him as existing and having supreme control over my life. I made the decisions I wanted to without consulting him because I had no clue that he had plans he wanted me to follow. My Christian life was one of just floating along, expecting to get to where God wanted me to because he was manipulating my circumstances in the background.

This is nothing like my spiritual life now. However, in my experiment, all the tangible (religious/spiritual) feelings are missing. This is the scary bit. I expect this is why those who succeeded the first followers of Jesus weren't able to stay in a spiritual life, but switched back to a tangible religious way, abandoning the Kingdom, and setting up the Christian religion.

I feel like a heretic. BUT...I'm not going to go by my feelings or "sight", but by faith. I can't please my Father outside of a life of faith, so this is another giant step of faith for me. I'm trusting him to see me through and to bring me to where I need to be.

After all, isn't this oneness? The place where you know each other's heart and mind, and where superfluous speech fades away?
