

A Never-Ending Fountain of Living Water

We are to drink of the Living Water each day to be refreshed for day. That's what we've been instructed to do by our King and that's what I have learnt to do. This action is actually drawing from the life of the King inside us, in the Internal Kingdom. Everyone can do it, but it takes practice to override the 'natural' man, especially the 'natural' mind.

Here's a new piece of advice from him on this topic:

"I am a never-ending fountain of living water, and I long to pour myself into every dry, cracked, and broken area of your life. Do you feel me now, reaching into your pain with my healing love? Listen, and you'll hear my rushing river flowing through you as it washes away the debris of confusion and disillusionment, clearing away the dry dusty remains of disappointment so you can clearly see the joy I have in store for you.

*No trauma is too great for the power of my love. The biggest gaping holes—the areas of your life that feel empty and void—become openings for me to pour myself into, when you invite me. So invite me, and I will come. I will fill you with myself, turn mourning into joy, replace heaviness with hope, and till the soil of your heart so beauty blooms from the ashes. Drink deeply of my love, and it will transform you—mind, body, and soul. Set your eyes on me today, and offer me your pain once and for all. Swim in my healing waters and allow the currents of my love to lead you into wholeness."*¹
