

Don't Think on Things that Steal Your Peace

The natural tendency is to focus on problems and concerns. We know we aren't supposed to do that, but it's hard not to. What we need is practise in an alternative so we turn in the right direction – to the positive.

Knowing scripture verses isn't enough to achieve this. Even being told prophetically in your spirit that you need to change, doesn't always work. What everyone needs is an experience which grounds them in the positive.

See if there are any ideas for you in this message from the Trinity which you can practise so that it becomes the process of moving from the natural to the spiritual, where everything is positive:

“Set your heart on me as you begin your day. Don't allow your thoughts to drift back to the things that stole your peace. Release the cares of yesterday. The enemy wants to invade your thoughts and hijack your peace today. Don't let him! Set your heart and thoughts on me. Let me be your holy obsession. Thoughts of me have a way of wiping away the slimy weight of disappointment. My glory is alive—ready to hold you near. I am the Lover of your soul, the Healer of every tattered heart. Find me now—in these moments before busyness steals you away. We will face the day together in joyful anticipation.”¹

For myself, my intimate relationship with each of the members of the Trinity is where I go to change my thoughts – in the Internal Kingdom. Recently I've rediscovered bliss² – i.e. being in the strong pleasure of their presence. I say “rediscovered”, not because I'd lost it, but because it was what I had been doing, but I'd been distracted by other spiritual techniques I was being trained in. My recent change came when I had an 'ah-ha' moment and was able to put a name to what was happening and I began to refocus myself there.

Refocus from life's circumstances to the wonderful life of being a son with Father as a perfect father is a great start. The reality is in the spirit realm.

“Many of you are steadily gazing at life's circumstances, which will keep you earthbound. Look up and access all that is available to you as My child. Trust Me. I see your dilemma, and I am willing and able to bring you through to victory. Shift your focus from natural to spiritual, from earth to heaven.”³

See how you go. All your needs are met in the Internal Kingdom, so start there.
