- ★ “The Billionaire Class’s Secret Deals and the Globalist Plot to Dominate”
“Right now, the U.N. is having its Climate Summit in the United Arab Emirates. This is the annual event wherein the world’s global elites come together (on their private jets) and discuss how much carbon you and I will be allowed to use in the coming decade. Amid this backdrop, it’s a great opportunity to expose some of the secret motivations and behind-the-scenes machinations at play guiding these pleasant-sounding green goals. We sat down with Seamus Bruner, an investigative journalist and author of the book “Controligarchs: the Billionaire Class, their Secret Deals, and the Globalist Plot to Dominate.” During our discussion, he elucidated the true motivations behind the green agenda.”

- “State-Mandated Suicide Proposed for Elderly Population”
“A Yale professor recently proposed euthanasia as a solution to aging populations. Yusuke Narita, an assistant professor of economics, stated: “I feel like the only solution is pretty clear ... In the end, isn’t it mass suicide and mass ‘seppuku’ of the elderly?” He also stated on euthanasia that there’s a “possibility of making it mandatory in the future.” His comments are stirring debate over the direction that medically assisted death is taking, and whether the end result could be democide.”

- “How to Resist the Censorship Apparatus”
“Do you think it’s a problem when major media corporations, Big Tech, academics, and NGOs get together in advance of a story in order to essentially create their own misinformation campaign ... not only that—somehow there’s a connection to the highest reaches of the Intelligence Community, all the way up to Secretary of State [Antony] Blinken.” In this episode, I sit down with Andrew Lowenthal, director of liber-net, an online platform promoting civil liberties and countering digital authoritarianism.”

- “The New Biosecurity State: Former UN Top Official Ramesh Thakur on How Science Became Dogma”
“We have seen... the transformation of the quintessential liberal democratic state into the national security state, then the administrative state, then the surveillance state, and now the biosecurity state. At each of these developments, you have an expansion of state power, and the spread of the state tentacles into increasingly intimate areas of public life and individual life,” says Ramesh Thakur. Mr. Thakur is a former United Nations assistant secretary-general and professor emeritus of public policy at The Australian National University. Now he is a Brownstone Institute senior scholar. How has science become dogma? How do we rebuild what was broken these last few years?”

- “CCP Military Hackers Preparing to Shut Down American Infrastructure”

“Chinese military hackers are accused of infiltrating the systems that keep America running. This includes the electric grid, water utilities, gas and oil systems, transportation, and others. This is allegedly being done in preparation for crippling attacks on the United States, in the case of a war in the Pacific. In this live Q&A with Crossroads host Joshua Philipp, we’ll discuss this topic and others...”

- “How Did the Corruption of Public Health Happen?”

“International public health is a mess. Once seen generally as a public good, the focus of the World Health Organization (WHO) now more closely resembles a scheme for extracting private profit from the public purse. Wealthy corporations drive a “public-private partnership” agenda, the foundations of the rich determine global priorities, and a propagandized public is ever more removed from decision-making regarding its own well-being. There was a time when things were different, and public health promoted genuine equity and decentralization. However, decades of naively swapping public control for private money have dismantled the decolonizing, community-based model on which institutions such as the WHO were ostensibly built. Recent policies have promoted impoverishment and centralized control, and the WHO is now seeking power to entrench these.”

- “A Cheat Sheet for Legislators Regarding the WHO and Health Emergencies”

“We are told that, in a world of multiplying health emergencies, it has become necessary to give up some independence in return for safety. It is a tribute to those backing this agenda through the World Health Organization (WHO) that this message continues to gain credence. If humans are important, then we should also understand its flaws, and decide whether they matter.”

- “Amendments to WHO’s International Health Regulations: An Annotated Guide”

“The Covid-skeptic world has been claiming the World Health Organization (WHO) plans to become some sort of global autocratic government, removing national sovereignty and replacing it with a totalitarian health state. The near-complete absence of interest by mainstream media would suggest, to the rational observer, that this is yet another ‘conspiracy theory’ from a disaffected fringe. The imposition of authoritarian rules on a global scale would normally attract attention. The WHO is fairly transparent in its machinations. It should therefore be straightforward to determine whether this is all misplaced hysteria, or an attempt to implement an existential change in sovereign rights and international relations. We would just need to read the document.”

- “Why Does the WHO Make False Claims Regarding Proposals to Seize States’ Sovereignty?”

“The director-general of the World Health Organization (WHO) states, “No country will cede any sovereignty to WHO,” referring to the WHO’s new pandemic agreement and proposed amendments to the International Health Regulations (IHR), currently being negotiated. His statements are clear and unequivocal, and wholly inconsistent with the texts he is referring to. A rational examination of the texts in question shows that: (1) The documents propose a transfer of decision-making power to the WHO regarding basic aspects of societal function, which countries undertake to enact; (2) The WHO director-general will have sole authority to decide when and where they are applied; (3) The proposals are intended to be binding under international law.”

“Experts expressed grave concerns about the role China's mass DNA collection may play in its transnational repression—the Chinese Communist Party's (CCP) harassment or assaults of individuals in other countries—at Wednesday's Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing.”

- “New Whistleblower Docs Expose Key Tactics of the Censorship Industrial Complex”

“Matt Taibbi is editor of Racket News and one of the key investigators of the Twitter Files. Last week, he testified before Congress on issues related to the First Amendment and government censorship. “It was two different hearings if you watched it. The Republicans were holding the hearing on government censorship, and the Democrats were holding basically a 'but Trump' hearing, where every time they got a chance to engage in anything, their entire focus was the dangers of Donald Trump and how that superseded anything that we could possibly be talking about,” says Mr. Taibbi. Mr. Taibbi, along with journalists Michael Shellenberger and Alex Gutentag, recently exposed a new set of documents from the Cyber Threat Intelligence League, an “anti-disinformation” group that waged an aggressive information operation on the public.”

- “Ugly Climate Change Battle Sweeps Conservatives Into Power”

“The sweeping election result for Geert Wilders whose Party for Freedom doubled its size to 37 out of 150 seats, has emerged as the largest parliamentary party, sending shock waves through the political elite not only in Holland but also throughout Europe. With the result, 110 million Dutch livestock might be breathing a sigh of relief as well. In scenes reminiscent of Australia's resounding defeat of The Voice referendum, New Zealand's new conservative government striking out the last vestiges of Jacinda Ardern's failed policies, followed by Argentina's turning to a right-leaning government, we see a new wave of conservatism emerge in Holland—often considered a bastion of all things woke and liberal.”

- “Economist Claims 2024 Will Bring ‘Biggest Crash of Our Lifetime’ in US”

“An economist who focuses on consumer spending has issued a dire warning about the U.S. economy in the coming year. “Since 2009, this has been 100 percent artificial, unprecedented money printing and deficits: $27 trillion over 15 years, to be exact,” economist Harry Dent told Fox Business on Dec. 19. “This is off the charts, 100 percent artificial, which means we're in a dangerous state. “I think 2024 is going to be the biggest single crash year we'll see in our lifetime. “We need to get back down to normal, and we need to send a message to central banks,” he said. “This should be a lesson I don't think we'll ever revisit. I don't think we'll ever see a bubble for any of our lifetimes again.””
