- "Nanotechnology Used in mRNA Vaccines and 2,000 Food Items Goes Unlabeled"
"Unbeknownst to most Americans, thousands of the food items on our store shelves contain ingredients that are made using nanotechnology. Specifically, they are made through a process that converts things like silver, copper, gold, aluminum, silicon, carbon, and different metal oxides into tiny, atom-sized particles that are one-billionth of a meter in size. They do this because over the past 30 years or so, scientists discovered that adding these tiny components can make our food more colorful, brighter, creamier, and crunchier, and they were even able to keep it fresher for longer. However, according to more and more consumer protection groups as well as health experts, there appears to be a catch: while these nanoparticles can provide a myriad of benefits, they might come at a price—and that price is our health, which might be getting compromised without our even knowing it."

- "Men Must Be Strong Again and Push Back Against Cancel Culture: Steve Deace"
"Cancel culture thrives in American society because men are too weak to push back against it, stand up for their rights, and defend their families, said Steve Deace, conservative commentator and host of 'The Steve Deace Show' on BlazeTV."

- "Environment, Population, and Capitalism"
"Environmentalism has been an ideology of gloom for at least six decades. One of the fixed beliefs in the environmentalist faith has been that people—real live human beings—have been a source of danger both to the ecology of our planet and to the human race's very survival."

- "'Emergency Socialism,' Accommodating Surprise, and Separating Power From Knowledge"
"Nearly four decades after investor George Gilder's book 'Wealth and Poverty' helped shape the economic policies of Ronald Reagan, Gilder sits down to discuss his forthcoming book 'Life After Capitalism.' " "As Peter Thiel declares, in the past, when you went public as a company, you gained new influence and power and marketing ability, and new capital and freedom. Now, when you go public, you get nationalized. And you become a kind of instrument of government policy,” says Gilder. Gilder also believes that many of the policies surrounding public health during the pandemic were actually weakening people’s immune systems under the guise of protection. “We’re trying to engineer a new dark age for our immune systems, trying to retard the learning processes that render our immune systems capable of facing the new threats—the unexpected threats—that may arise in the future,” says Gilder.”

- “World Economic Forum Criticized as ‘Unelected World Government’; Food Programs Include Bugs and Lab-Grown Meat”
“The World Economic Forum (WEF) wrapped up its 2023 meeting in Davos, Switzerland, facing public pressure over its programs to influence government through business, investment, and partnerships. Elon Musk received millions of responses on Twitter when he raised the question of whether the WEF should “control the world.” The answer was a resounding “no,” but it raised deeper questions over what the organization has come to represent. Is it just a business and finance organization, or is it becoming a global unelected government? Meanwhile, WEF’s plan for “alternative” foods is now becoming better known. The agenda openly includes bugs, lab-grown meat, and lab-grown plants, as the organization looks to recreate the way that people grow and consume food.”

- “The West’s Burgeoning Censorship Industry and the Government Funds pouring in”
““Whoever can control the Department of Dirty Tricks is able to use it to remove all opposition,” says Mike Benz. He is the executive director. “The Twitter Files were just the tip of the iceberg”, says Benz, who has been tracking the rise of the West’s censorship industry for years. “22 million tweets were categorized as misinformation for purposes of takedowns or throttling through [the Election Integrity Partnership],” Benz said. “It wasn’t just government individual takedown requests. It was government pressure ... to create whole new categories of things to censor and then arming them with the artificial intelligence to then automatically scan and ban the new thought violations.” In this comprehensive two-part interview, Benz breaks down the major players in today’s censorship regime and how tactics once used abroad were deployed to target Americans and so-called election “delegitimization” or COVID “misinformation” online.”

- “Brain Implants for Everyone”
“One of the main topics going to be discussed at this year’s World Economic Forum is the topic of ESG (environmental, social, and corporate governance). And while a sympathetic interpretation of ESG is that it forces companies to be more inclusive, more diverse, and more environmentally friendly—there is another way to look at it, which is that it’s actually a way for the Davos individuals who believe in this ideology to force their agenda on other nations.”

- “Who can die? Canada wrestles with euthanasia for the mentally ill”
“As Canada prepares to expand its euthanasia law to include those with mental illness, some Canadians - including many of the country's doctors - question whether the country's assisted death programme has already moved too far, too fast.”

- “No Surprise the ‘Squeamish Inquisition’ Wants to Stop Peterson’s Ottawa Talk”
“The cry of the Squeamish Inquisition is that Peterson is too “dangerous” to even allow within the precincts of delicate Ottawa lest (I like certain slightly old words) he ruffle its celebrated tranquility, and more to the point upset the digestion and peace of mind of the woke clerisy who wish to see him cancelled.”

- “Government introduces laws to protect Australians from online misinformation”
“The federal government will give the media regulator new legislative powers in an attempt to reduce the spread of misinformation and disinformation on global technology platforms such as Twitter, YouTube and Facebook. Communications Minister Michelle Rowland is planning to introduce laws that will give Australia’s media watchdog the ability to retract information from the world’s most powerful tech companies if they fail to meet standards of a voluntary misinformation and disinformation code of practice.”

- “Gas Stove Ban Narrative Ties to Deeper Agenda”
“A new narrative to ban gas stoves was pushed suddenly and simultaneously by several major news outlets, leftist politicians, and public figures. Almost immediately, New York Governor Kathleen Hochul announced that New York would begin forbidding gas stoves in new buildings, and other states are weighing on whether to follow as well. Yet, it appears the narrative has a deeper agenda, potentially tied to the Green New Deal and the Sustainable Development Goals of the United Nations.”

- “Controversial Study Doesn’t Assume ‘Causal Relationship’ Between Gas Stoves and Asthma: Think Tank”
“A group that commissioned a study that linked natural gas stoves to childhood asthma that was cited by a number of media outlets this week revealed that it “does not assume or estimate a causal relationship” between gas stoves and asthma. The study, commissioned by the Rocky Mountain Institute (RMI) think tank, linked 12.7 percent of all childhood asthma cases to gas stoves and was cited by an official in the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) earlier this week when he floating a possible ban or regulation of gas stoves, used by tens of millions of Americans. However, some doctors and researchers have sounded the alarm on the study’s conclusions and have noted that asthma is a complex disease with many different causes.”

- “To Be Ruled by Liars”
“The last several years have revealed something we never wanted to believe. Major swaths of the leaders of our public culture—in government, media, and industry—have been lying to us. They had their reasons and certainly believed that their lies were necessary and thus noble. But still we know now what we once suspected but lacked confirmation: the loss of liberty in our times is rooted in core claims that have proven to be untrue.”

- “Rejecting the Great Reset and Unearthing the Deep State”
“Pushing anti-human initiatives—from the climate change agenda to vaccine passports, and from universal surveillance to a two-tier justice system—globalist bureaucrats believe they’re on the verge of total victory. But not so fast, say the world’s working men and women: we’ve just begun to fight. And like that, the ruling class from Davos to Washington is on notice.”

- “‘Operation Jigsaw’: Google’s 4 New Secret Methods of Online Censorship”
“Google has a new initiative called “Info Intervention.” It’s a plan couched in the idea of keeping people safe from misinformation and harmful language—and the way to do that is to control ever more what we are able to see and say online. Their official website bills this new initiative as a “set of approaches, informed by behavioral science research and validated by digital experiments, to build resilience to online harms.” This new initiative has Google essentially using the exact same methodology on the user that Pavlov used on the dogs during his experiments. However, while Pavlov was trying to get the dogs to salivate, Google is trying to make their users question anything that goes against what their fact-checkers determine to be misinformation. This new “Info Intervention” initiative is being led by one of Google’s subsidiary companies—a company called Jigsaw.”
