- “UNESCO Warns Australia About Condition of Great Barrier Reef”
“The United Nation’s cultural and scientific body, UNESCO, has warned Australia must do more on land clearing and climate change if it wants to save the Great Barrier Reef. While the World-Heritage-listed reef has been left off the in-danger list for now, UNESCO says the Reef faces its fifth mass bleaching event in eight years. “The state party should be urged to set more ambitious emission reduction targets consistent with limiting global temperature to 1.5 degrees Celsius above pre-industrial levels,” UNESCO said in a draft decision on June 25.”

- “Residents Wonder Why Australians Homes Are so Cold”
“A recent temperature dip has Australians taking to social media asking an important question: why are our houses so cold? Sydney and Melbourne experienced their chilliest morning of the year so far on June 19, with lows of 6.5 degrees Celsius and 1.4 Celsius, respectively. Days earlier Central Queensland had its iciest night on record at 5.6 Celsius, with residents waking up to unseasonable frost covering the ground.”
