- “Most Intensive Ivermectin Use Had 74 Percent Reduction in Excess Deaths in Peru: New Study”
“When the government of Peru authorized ivermectin for use during the COVID-19 pandemic, a natural experiment occurred that provided evidence of the drug’s effectiveness, according to a new peer-reviewed ecological study, The paper’s results, published Aug. 8 in Cureus, found a 74 percent reduction in excess deaths in 10 states with the most intensive ivermectin use over a 30-day period following peak deaths during the pandemic. When analyzing data across 25 states in Peru, researchers found that these reductions in excess deaths correlated closely to ivermectin use during four months in 2020.”

- “FDA Drops Ivermectin Truth (that We Knew All Along)”
“After the FDA sent out a public message urging people to not take ivermectin, 3 doctors who were disciplined for prescribing ivermectin to their patients filed a lawsuit against the agency. The main issue in question here is whether what the FDA was putting out crossed the line. Because according to federal law—the FDA is allowed to provide information—but they’re not allowed to provide medical advice. Which is exactly what the doctors are arguing took place. However, during the lawsuit, the lawyer representing the FDA had to make several public admissions that, if we had heard them several years ago, might’ve shocked the nation.”
