

Current Divine Interruptions to Life

Last year (2020) I was shown by the Spirit to retrain in the Community sector, which was strange seeing my areas are science and technology. I was shown to do the Diploma in Community Service, which I did and completed after the COVID lock-down in early 2021. I then began working as a volunteer Recreational Activity Officer (RAO) in a local aged care facility to get practical experience. My circumstances were then arranged so I would get an invitation to do a higher course, one that I would not have considered either. I followed the leading and with some arrangement difficulties began the Advanced Diploma in Community Sector Management remotely, which I completed in August 2021.

The shift to the Community sector came 'out of left field' and I had a response within me to reject this original stimulus to retrain. There was also some 'dampening' from those who know me, as they considered a retiree training in this way was a bad decision. Still, I followed the Spirit and was able to successfully complete the courses without any hiccups.

I'm now waiting for my release into where the new knowledge and skills will be used for Kingdom purposes (other than where I'm volunteering). This is the 'waiting game' where my mind wants me to jump into something new, but my spirit says, "No. Wait 'til you're released." This means a regular tussle between my mind and spirit, but I must allow my spirit to override my soul and my mind.

This month our King released information about these 'strange' changes he's making in our lives. It came through Australia's Lana Vawser:

"Recently, the Lord spoke to me about divine interruptions. I heard the Lord saying "I am interrupting" and the sense surrounded me strongly that as God's people right now we need to 'discern' the interruptions. For some interruptions that some are deeming as the 'enemy' is actually the Lord 'interrupting' to 'change course' and 'change direction.'

I felt strongly that the Spirit of God was highlighting not only the place of discerning the interruptions but also embracing the divine interruptions, for in some of the most unexpected places and unexpected interruptions is a 'new move of the Holy Spirit'.

This is the era of "I never thought I would be doing this..." – there are great divine assignments and adventures with the Lord that He is leading His people on, and into, that they never thought they would do, yet these are the places of tremendous favour, anointing and move of the Holy Spirit.

The Lord showed me that in many of these 'divine interruptions' He is bringing new giftings to the surface. There are giftings that He has placed within the lives of His people that they have not recognised that are coming to the surface through these divine interruptions.

In these moments of divine interruptions, the Lord is making room for the NEW. It is our responsibility to stop, ask the Holy Spirit "is this You, Lord?" and LISTEN and not be quick to "dismiss" the interruption as the "enemy" because it doesn't fit what we thought we would do or the direction we thought we would go in.

In the PAUSING when these interruptions take place the Lord showed me there are weighty downloads of new assignments, vision and strategy the Lord was releasing for new directions and new moves of the Holy Spirit that have not been expected or anticipated by His people.

In discerning and embracing the interruptions that ARE the hand of the Lord, there are going to be mighty demonstrations of the Lord's power, provision and positioning for this new era." ¹
