Background: For many years now, I've been receiving instructions about the Kingdom from our King. Currently, the Spirit is encouraging me to focus on the dissemination of information on the Gospel of the Kingdom. The aim is to bring believers into alignment with where our King desires them to be operating.

Question: Lord, what does the Gospel of the Kingdom really look like in comparison to the gospel that's preached these day?

Message:

(NOTE: This message is directed to his people in Australia as a group)

"There's a huge difference between the two – they're 'light-years apart', to be precise. When I came as Jesus of Nazareth, I spoke the Gospel of the Kingdom to everyone I connected with. That was because I was re-introducing the Kingdom back onto Earth (as the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth), the way it was meant to be from Creation.

This is why it's so important that my people really 'get'[1] what it is to be in our family. It's not about placating us because of their misbehaviour. It's not about doing good to get 'brownie points'[2] with us. It's not about religious activity – which they think is what we want. In truth, it's about waking up through a paradigm shift through revelation, to what the Kingdom on Earth really is – and it's not about church. It's not about Christianity, and it's not about anything other than the reality of 'what it is'. To use an expression: 'It is what it is'. I can't make it any plainer than that.

The Kingdom is here, right now. It was always meant to be here, right now, since the work that I did back in the first century. However, my people have gone astray for too long, and it's pleasing to see groups of them coming to the realisation of what the Kingdom is really about. I'm so pleased that this is taking place, but there's still a long way to go, because waking up to the realisation is only just the foundation of what needs to happen from there on.

My people need to learn what it means to live in the Kingdom today, and then they need to grow and mature in their sonship. And, they need to experience life in the Kingdom, [and] spiritual experiences that are beyond discounting[3] by those who criticise what's been experienced. Then they need to be able to spread the news of the Kingdom, which in common parlance is the Gospel of the Kingdom. And so, to bring people into the reality of what is, rather than the false narrative of what it is not.

My people need to speak about the Kingdom in factual matters, not in theology, not in biblical teaching, but from their own experience. That being said, they cannot express the full[4] Gospel of the Kingdom – that is, the full greatness and good news of the Kingdom – unless they've experienced it themselves. It can't be just head knowledge, because when they speak head knowledge, people will not resonate with it, in the main. Head knowledge only imparts head knowledge to somebody else, it doesn't lead them into experiences.

Apart from speaking out the real, true Gospel of the Kingdom, they need to start mentoring people. They need to begin training them, bringing them into spiritual experiences, working them through their difficulties in understanding, working them through the problems of life, [all][5] from the Kingdom's perspective. But they can't do that unless they are already successful in living the Kingdom life themselves.

So, that's the train of progression through[6] coming into an understanding of the Kingdom. It's not a short-term thing – it's long-term (generational in nature) into the future. The important thing is that my people understand the Gospel of the Kingdom, but they should also be speaking accurately so they're not presenting a pretence of what the Kingdom is like, but the truth, the spiritual reality of what it is.

The Gospel of the Kingdom is about humanity being restored to our family, as they were originally designed to be, so that they no longer live out of a lost identity, but they regain their identity as sons (Kingdom sons), and they operate in partnership with us as we designed them to. That's our plan, for them, to work with us in the governance of Earth, of the natural realm, and with experience and maturity, in the whole cosmos. That sounds like a wildly fantastical[7] statement, but it's the reality.

So, it should be quite plain to see that the evangelical gospel that's being preached for so long, doesn't come 'within a bull's roar'[8] of what the reality of the Kingdom really is. You see, it's not about bringing people into salvation so they're saved from destruction and judgement. It's about bringing them into sonship and functionality in our family in the oversight of the natural realm.

I mean, it's pretty clear from the scripture's statement that "we will judge the angels"[9]. If humans are going to judge the angels, then they can't be subordinate to angels. Sons are in a higher status than angels, hence why my people will be able to judge them.

So, I'll make it quite clear: The Gospel of the Kingdom is about receiving everything that the Kingdom has to offer in this life and in 'The Age to Come'. Everything belongs to "the sons of the most high God" (as the ancient expression goes), and that "everything" is available now.

To appropriate that, those who come into the Kingdom must work with us, so we can train them to access it. That's not by giving them secret methods, but by training them, teaching them, encouraging them, and experiencing them, so they can achieve that for themselves. Then, we will guide them, as they grow in their maturity and advance into things that are quite astonishing to the world today.

I've spoken about life in the Kingdom in the past,[10] so I leave it to my people to check that out."
