

MYOB. Yes, MYOB

Yes, it's vitally important for your personal wellbeing, as well as the wellbeing of those who you have authority over, to mind your own business. I can't stress that enough. Over the years, I've observed great trouble, and even chaos, resulting from those who didn't mind their own business and stepped outside of their level and place of authority.

And yes, MYOB also relates to gossip and babbling, but I've covered that topic elsewhere.¹

The spirit realm and the Kingdom function the way they do, because all spiritual beings follow the protocols and laws of spiritual authority that Father has put in place. As humans, we have been given the option of free choice, so we can choose not to follow the protocols and laws of spiritual authority that are relevant for us. The fact that the world is in such a mess, is actually a consequence of people making their own choices, rather than implementing Father's choices for them. Much of that is by operating out of false authority.

The lives of all people are in one level of mess or another, because they don't understand how to stay within the authority that's rightfully theirs. On top of that – and augmenting it – is spiritual authority which they also have little to no comprehension of. Both those two sets of authority, when followed properly, produce harmony, but when not, they produce levels of unrest and chaos, even bondage.

The point for sons is this: If we can't strictly adhere to the protocols of spiritual authority that Father has set in place, we can't function effectively for the Kingdom. When we step outside of our spiritual authority while on a Kingdom assignment, we cannot produce the desired results that Father wants – it's simply that hazardous. Of course, every time we choose to do what we want, in opposition to what Father wants, we're actually stepping outside our spiritual authority. That occurs because we fail to acknowledge Father's (or the King's) spiritual authority as greater than ours, and we should submit to theirs instead.

Recently, Father stressed that we should stay within the boundaries of our authority. He knows all about that, because he set spiritual laws and protocols in place. Let's see what he said:

*“Stay within the boundaries of your authority. You have no authority over that which you have no responsibility. Strive to walk and live in divine order and in the flow of my Spirit,” says the Lord, “and you will be shown what to do in every situation. Avoid getting overwhelmed by what might be or what could be. Live each moment as it comes.”*²

If you don't think staying within your spiritual authority is important, just think about The Fall. When Adam and Ezer³ followed the instructions of the Nachash⁴, and disobeyed the protocol set in place by The Son⁵, their authority as rulers of the Earth was forfeited and transferred to Satan. See how something as simple as disobeying a spiritual law can result in the loss of spiritual authority? (There's a bit more to it than what I've covered here.)

The point is this: Stay within your authority because stepping outside of it opens the door for the enemy to operate. He is functioning within the spiritual authority that he still has, just like all the angelic realm does.

5 – The Son is the one who manifests in the natural realm as a theophany, not Father.

IMPORTANT: If you've read my 'Spiritual Authority' series before, it's my opinion that they need to be re-read, as the principles involved are critical for the success of our lives and for our work for the Kingdom.
