

QUESTION: “What Do I Do With The Word I Received?”

One of these things I haven't covered in my articles on spiritual communication, is what to do when Father tells you something that's important for others to know. Our propensity, of course, is to want to pass it on as quickly as possible. That's not what we're to do.

What we do need to do, so we operate the Kingdom way, is to change our prophetic paradigm from a church one to a Kingdom one.

- The church paradigm is: When you don't know, ask a prophet or your pastor.
- The Kingdom paradigm is: When you don't know, ask Father, because he's your dad.

It's the responsibility of sons to directly communicate personally with Father, and not use any kind of intermediary. We can't learn to be kings, ruling our own kingdom for him, if we're not fully in charge of our responsibilities.

Once Father tells us something that's relevant to others, we are to ask him what to do with it and wait for his answer. If we get none, he's not ready to tell us straight away, so we continue waiting. We keep listening, for however long it takes, and we may be told what to do with it.

The Kingdom rule is: If you hear nothing, you do nothing. It's as simple as that.

This message dispersal process is his process. If he tells us something important, he'll tell us what to do with it. It's the same as when he asks you to do something – he'll tell you what, when and how, and also bankroll you for the task. You see, we're working as partners with him, under his protocols, and for his purposes.

Even if the word we're given is very important, such as, there'll be an economic crash on such-&-such a date, the information is given to us for our benefit, but for his purposes. We can't partner with him properly if we go off doing our own thing in any way.

Often we're told things about others so we understand them and their circumstances, not necessarily to tell them what we've been told. If you like gossiping (talking to others about your personal matters and listening to theirs), you'll find Father's protocol for disseminating information hard to stick to.

Sometimes it's to join with him in dealing with the issue/situation mentioned. It may be to:

- Assist the person or community
- Understand the times, seasons or personal situations
- Go into the courts of Heaven and deal with it
- Have the background, so he can instruct you what to declare or decree concerning it
- Have the background, so he can instruct you how to pray into it
- Prepare you to direct and release angels sent on assignment in that respect

The takeaway is: Downloads are not always to blurt out or distribute. You can see this possibly happening with the prophetic messages distributed in Charisma Magazine¹ and on the internet. Very often they appear to be personal messages, just for the person, not messages for the wider community of believers.

This is why we need discernment to handle what Father says to us. We also need wisdom, experience in handling them, and a strong relationship with the Trinity, so we allow them to guide us wherever it's required.
