- “Over 300 COVID-19 Papers Withdrawn for Not Meeting Standards of Scientific Soundness”
“Research journals have withdrawn well over 300 articles on COVID-19 due to compromised ethical standards and concerns about the publications’ scientific validity. Retraction Watch has provided a running list of withdrawn papers on COVID-19 ranging from “Acute kidney injury associated with COVID-19” to “Can Your AI Differentiate Cats from COVID-19?” A total of 330 research papers have currently been retracted.”

- “Retraction inaction: How the pandemic has exposed frailties in scientific publishing”
“Relatively early in the COVID-19 pandemic, three scientific papers were published about the new, highly-contagious virus that have since become notorious. All used fake or suspect patient data, and were either retracted by the prominent medical journals that published them or removed altogether. Unfortunately, the damage was already done, despite the retractions, because the papers had already been cited by other researchers in the field, and reported on in mass media. Even worse, the papers continued to be cited even after being retracted by the journals in question. Retraction is supposed to safeguard against error and misconduct, and should stop bogus or incorrect research from impacting scientific ideas and clinical practice, but that’s not how it played out in these high-profile cases, during a global pandemic.”

- “Flawed COVID-19 Papers Cited an Average of 53 Times per Paper in Research and Media”
“An investigation into COVID-19 research found that among the more than 270,000 papers that have been published since the start of the pandemic, 212 retracted papers were cited 2,697 times, with a median of seven times and an average of 53 times per paper. A retracted study linking the antimalarial drug Hydroxychloroquine to an increased risk of mortality and heart arrhythmia was the most cited paper with 1,360 citations at the time of data extraction.”

- “NSW Health ‘erased’ data used in weekly COVID surveillance reports”
“Like many Australians cooped up during Covid lockdowns, Xin Yin Ooi found herself “obsessed” with weekly updates from health authorities, poring over case numbers, vaccinations, hospitalisations and deaths. As a data analyst, the Sydney woman was naturally interested in the detailed statistical breakdowns provided in NSW Health’s weekly surveillance report — so when she noticed a strange figure in one table, she decided to request the underlying numbers to check the work for herself. The only problem? The data had been “erased”.”

- “Smallpox Vaccine Recipients Died From Heart Inflammation, Autopsies Find”
“Several U.S. military personnel who received a smallpox vaccination died from heart inflammation, and others hadn’t recovered from the same inflammation years after first experiencing the condition, an in-depth review of medical records has found. Autopsies of two male military members in their 20s who suddenly died showed that they had heart inflammation, or myocarditis. There were also signs that heart inflammation contributed to the deaths of two others, one an 18-year-old male and the other a 23-year-old female. Researchers also found that 348 members survived myocarditis or a related condition, pericarditis, but that it took at least months for each to recover, with some still not having recovered years later. Some 2.5 million service members received a smallpox vaccine between Dec. 1, 2002, and Dec. 31, 2016, the time period covered in the study.”

- “ANALYSIS: Toxicity of Lithium-Ion Batteries at Odds With Push for Electric Vehicles”
“Government leaders are pushing for the widespread adoption of electric vehicles (EVs), but there are concerns about the vast amounts of mineral mining necessary for battery production and the ensuing waste management issues taking a toll on the environment. Lithium, the primary component of an EV battery, can be highly environmentally polluting in its extraction and discarding phases. A major issue with lithium mining is the quantity of water required. Mining just 1 ton of lithium can use up to 2.2 million gallons of water, according to AZO Cleantech. This results in the depletion of water sources close to mining regions and drying out of land, posing a threat to not only the environment of the region but also communities living in the vicinity. Lithium batteries use various elements like nickel, copper, and lead, which can all be toxic.”

- “Deadly Conflicts of Interest and the Global Coverup of a Failed Medical Experiment”
““Looking at the data from a totality of sources, I mean, the signals were absolutely alarming ... You saw a failed medical experiment being covered up on a global scale,” says Dr. Pierre Kory. We discuss the COVID-19 vaccine rollout, what Dr. Kory describes as a decades-long war on repurposed drugs, and the information warfare tactics that have been deployed these last 3 years. And we also take a look at an interesting and perhaps not well-known part of Dr. Kory’s medical experience—he was an expert medical witness for the George Floyd civil case. Dr. Pierre Kory is a pulmonary and critical care medicine specialist and co-founder of the Front Line COVID-19 Critical Care Alliance (FLCCC). “Once you read a study, and you see that they have numerous conflicts of interest with the actual molecule or compound or medicine that’s being studied, you cannot trust that paper,” Dr. Kory says.”

- “The Shocking Truth About Edible mRNA Vaccines in Our Food (Part 1)”
“Unbeknownst to most people, there’s a push to scale up the use of both mRNA technology and gene therapy on the livestock that winds up on our supermarket store shelves. This means that whether it’s beef, pork, lamb, chicken, or turkey, the meat that you’re purchasing from the store could very soon contain the remnants of mRNA based vaccines that the animals were treated with. And right now, only

- “The Shocking Truth About Edible mRNA Vaccines in Our Food (Part 2)”

“In today’s episode, we cover the flip side of this coin: what happens to a person who eats meat that’s been treated with mRNA-based vaccine technology. And this question brings us into brand new territory, what the “experts” refer to as: edible vaccine technology – which has gotten a lot more advanced than you’ve probably realized.”

- “The End Game, Synthetic Biology EXPOSED!!!”

“Celeste Solum joins us to expose the totality of the agenda surrounding nanotechnology being embedded into humans, animals and plant life to destroy and replace all biological lifeforms from God’s natural creation with synthetic biology.”

- “Study Links Less Exercise to More Infections”

“There’s a significant connection between increased physical activity in children and decreased upper respiratory tract infections. In other words, the more active children are, the less likely they are to get sick. This observation is based on clinical research done by a team of Polish scientists. Their study, “Association of Low Physical Activity With Higher Respiratory Tract Infections Frequency Among Pre-School Children,” was published in the peer-reviewed journal Pediatric Research in January 2023.”
