- ★ “‘Racism’: The most abused word in political discourse”

“In Australia, the term ‘racism’ is sometimes used to describe the views of people who express opinions different to those held by the illiberal elites.”

- “Individualism vs. the Benefits of Community: Rediscovering the Village”

“In today’s world, society celebrates self-sufficiency so much that we’ve become experts at looking out for ‘number one.’ And yes, self-care and protecting your energy are non-negotiables—necessary even! But somewhere along the way, this survival instinct has mutated into hyper-individualism. People are confusing “boundaries” with building walls, shutting themselves off. And still, we wonder, where’s the village? The one that’s supposed to be raising us, supporting us, and having our back? Individualism has been marketed as the golden ticket to success, but at what cost? Let’s dive into the tension between individualism and community, and how finding the balance between them can lead to a more abundant, stress-free life.”

- “Cancel culture: Now coming from the Right”

THE WEEK

“‘MAGA’s doxxing war’ has begun, said Edith Olmsted in The New Republic. Hundreds of Americans have been fired, suspended, or investigated over social media posts expressing negative opinions about Charlie Kirk after the prominent Trump ally’s assassination last week. Vice President JD Vance encouraged the purge, saying, “When you see someone celebrating Charlie’s murder, call them out. And hell, call their employer.” But many of those being canceled didn’t “celebrate” Kirk’s death; instead, they called out his “history of making racist, misogynist, and homophobic remarks.””

- “PROGRESSIVES - “Often Wrong, but Never in Doubt””

“Progressive ideology can never be wrong, even when it is. This often results in the most ridiculous, logically disconnected reasoning when the progressives search for causal factors for issues.”

- “Political censorship makes it impossible to defend women’s rights”

“When it comes to biological women's rights - there's not a lot of enthusiasm for truth, facts, or freedom inside Australian law. "The Left have done a really good job of confusing people by capturing the language." - Katherine Deves.”
