

Wisdom Comes from Listening to the King's Voice

The source of wisdom for sons is the King (or Father), no one else. The Trinity has all knowledge and all wisdom and this must be our source in the Kingdom. The only proviso to that is when they connect us with someone who they want to impart wisdom to us. This indirect method is the norm for most of us because we don't listen to the Spirit downloading heavenly wisdom, either constantly or partially. We also ignore his prompting.

Religious training teaches believers to draw wisdom and knowledge from the professional Christians in their fellowship or at conferences. That's not the way the Kingdom operates. Drawing from others is the spiritually immature way wisdom and knowledge are obtained. Our responsibility is to grow and develop in our spirituality (or sonship) so we become mature and hear for ourselves. However, if we keep drawing from others, books or scripture, we'll be like an adult who can't break free of soul ties with their parents.

Our King gave instructions recently on how best to gain wisdom, and that's from him:

*"Get quiet and stay still. Listen for my voice in your spirit as I give you wisdom and direction for the days ahead," says the Lord. "Know that I am with you when you feel alone. I have not abandoned you. You are mine, and I am yours. Remember that as you take the next step in your spiritual journey.""*¹

*"There are situations that require clarity. You will have to quiet your soul so that you can receive my instruction," says the Lord. "Panic will only lead to confusion. Stay calm in order to hear my voice and move forward with assurance that you are following my leading. You just need to settle down.""*²

Note that he never gave us an alternative path to obtain wisdom. Therefore we need to abide by his teaching – nothing else.

The pressure is strong for us to get wisdom from others. This is how society has trained us and how our life outside of the Kingdom has experienced us. Therefore, we have a tendency to draw wisdom from those who we believe are wise. This needs to stop and we need to learn to hear for ourselves so we can handle life situations and circumstances as sons, not humans.

Our King recently provided instruction on that as well:

*"Many times, you have backed down from those who seem to be wise, but now I call you to speak with my words of truth, wisdom, and love. Right now, with you here in my presence, I will reveal myself to you as true wisdom. My ways and thoughts will be understood as you yield to my Spirit. I will teach you with knowledge that comes from eternity. I will give you the secrets stored up for those who fear me and delight in me. Wisdom from above will enter your heart, and a deep fountain of truth will be opened inside of you. You will be amazed by what I reveal to you and how I use you in the coming days. Sit with me. Listen to my voice. Know my heart, and your heart will be filled with my words.""*³

REMEMBER: As sons, our right (and responsibility to work towards) is to receive 'eternal'/heavenly wisdom and knowledge. That's as much as Father wants to release to us, according to our level of spiritual maturity.
